If a major roadway (ex. San Tomas or railway) is used as the dividing line, I think all neighborhoods would remain intact.

Use a major street as the boundary between the two voting districts.

If so, would you prefer a north/south or an east/west boundary between the two Districts?

East/west boundary

What street would you prefer to use (to the extent possible) to divide the two Districts?

San Tomas Expressway (western and eastern Council Districts)

Other

Other criteria you think are important:

Is it too late to propose three districts? I think the districts should be similar to zip codes 95050 (incl. 95053), 95051, and 95054.

When developing the new districts, I think it's important to make sure north-side residents have appropriate representation. They have different concerns than south-side residents. They are an island surrounded by commercial/industrial properties, and their current representation seems inadequate.

If we do a north/south split, I think the railway is a better dividing line than El Camino Real.

Other criteria you think are important:

Ideally, the method chosen should minimize the need for redistricting. There will never be more interest in the districts than when they are first created. Ideally, we should adopt an automated redistricting method, such as <http://bdistricting.com/2010/>

East/west boundary

What street would you prefer to use (to the extent possible) to divide the two Districts?

San Tomas Expressway (western and eastern Council Districts)

Other

Other criteria you think are important:

If possible, it would be desirable to avoid a north/south division. The northern part of Santa Clara is historically less affluent than the southern part. A south/north division would effectively create a district of haves and a district of have nots.

I think the neighborhoods that are reflected in NextDoor do a fairly decent job of capturing the actual neighborhood breakdowns.

Use a major street as the boundary between the two voting districts.

If so, would you prefer a north/south or an east/west boundary between the two Districts?

East/west boundary

What street would you prefer to use (to the extent possible) to divide the two Districts?

El Camino Real (northern and southern Council Districts)

Other

Other criteria you think are important:

The way you word the question about boundary can be misleading - I read it as the boundary runs East/West (which would lend itself to something like an El Camino boundary line) but others may read it as an East District and a West District. (and the same can apply to the North/South boundary).

Please sort through any responses that indicate an East/West boundary but where the same responder has selected San Tomas Expressway as the District. The 2nd question is more clear as it indicates the street and type of districts.

East/west boundary

What street would you prefer to use (to the extent possible) to divide the two Districts?

El Camino Real (northern and southern Council Districts)

Other

Other criteria you think are important:

If we need to have some neighborhoods from across the primary dividing line to more closely equalize population, it would be important to me to put together neighborhoods that share communities of interest. For example, neighborhoods zoned to the same elementary school or neighborhoods that cluster around a particular house of worship, community center, or even shopping district.
